

POTENTIAL EMPLOYERS:

This Credentials Page contains all of the materials that may lend insight to my ability as an attorney, whatever that ability may be. My hope is it also speaks to my aptitude as a person (whatever that may be as well). My ultimate aim is that you leave this page admiring my attention to detail, my uncanny ability to organize and analyze, all the while believing you've seen into my personality and found what makes me tick.

And, of course, left loving it all when you do.

Now you may be wondering why. Why would I devote an entire page, on a site filled with poor Photoshop renderings and a donate button down the line, to my aptitude and experience as an attorney? It's a fair question, after all, and here's the answer:

I'm tired of the typical. While I have no problem seeking out positions I'm absolutely in love with, I've decided my default position will be to create this employment depository allowing future employers to seek me out. Here I am for the world to see, is what I'm saying, so come and get me if you want me.

That being said, I've been an attorney for about six and a half years. First in Indiana, then in New York, and now in California. Yes, I had to take a bar examination each time (damn you, CA, and your refusal to reciprocate with your sister states!). I would like to humblebrag on that point and say of the three bar exams I sat for, I created my own study schedule and adhered to it without the aid of a more formal bar review course. Three times.

As for experience, before becoming licensed in Indiana I worked for three years in the Consumer Litigation Section of the Indiana Attorney General's Office. After that, I then moved to New York to broaden my legal experiences. In the time since, my experience truly crosses the divide as can be divined from my resume. Nowadays, I do a little of this and a little of that. This latitude has given me a certain amount of time to explore other legal pursuits, mainly writing/finishing a fictional novel (which I have), as well as creating a ghostwriting business specializing in legal drafts.

In short, there's not much I can't do so long as my objectives are clear. If you'd like to speak with me, please utilize the Contact Tab or email me directly and we'll go from there. Cheers and thank you for visiting www.lastofthetrue.com.

Respectfully,
